NEW STATE EPILEPTIC COLONY WAS AWARDED TO DIXON BY VOTE OF STATE BOARD OF ADMINISTRATION THIS AFTERNOON

THE CITY IS AWARDED THE NEW INSTITUTION ON CONDITIONS WHICH LOCAL PROMOTERS APPEHENDED BEFORE BIDDING FOR INSTITUTION—ARTESIAN WELL, SWITCHING AND STREET RAILWAY FACILITIES AND POWER ARE REQUIRED.

FIRST EXPENDITURE $1,500,000

In All Probability Over Three Million Dollars Will Be Spent in Building and Grounds—Is Great Thing for the Community.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2—Special to Telegraph—The State Board of Administration in meeting here this afternoon decided to locate the new state epileptic colony at Dixon, Ill., provided the citizens of Dixon will bind themselves in writing to furnish the colony with artesian well water, street railway facilities, switch tracks and electric power.

To Spend Millions.

Dixon—The value of this announcement to Dixon is hard to comprehend in an instant. The state will spend a million and a half dollars on the grounds, buildings, etc., as an initial expense, and Chairman Kern of the administration board, told a Telegraph representative during his visit here that the state would ultimately spend at least three millions of dollars on the institution.

It will be the only epileptic colony in Illinois for many years. It will be built just as soon as it is possible to get to work on it.

Is there any doubt that the citizens of Dixon will not be able to guarantee the requirements? Not for an instant. Dixon appreciates this prize and Dixon is going to keep it now that it is within her grasp. The details are minor. We have the hospital.

Brinton Deserves Credit.

Mayor W. B. Brinton deserves a crown of glory, for it was largely through his efforts that this institution was secured for Dixon. He was ably assisted by many prominent Dixonites, who also will come in for a good share of commendation, but this colony was Mr. Brinton's particular hobby, and he has surely made good on it.

Mr. Brinton was on the scene of battle to the last and prepared to fight to the last ditch. He held a conference with Governor Dunne yesterday in Chicago and today he went early to Springfield to be there when the board of administration met.

The site selected runs along the river north of Dixon, commencing just above the city limits.

GETS GOOD PLACE.

Everett Jennings, assistant states attorney of Cook county, who delivered the memorial address to the Elks of Dixon last December, has been appointed attorney for the Public Utilities commission, at a salary of $6,000 per year. Many Dixon friends will congratulate him.

EDITOR PINDELL HAS DECLINED THE POST

LETTER TO PRESIDENT SAYS PEORIA NEWSPAPER MAN WILL NOT BE AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA.

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2—Henry M. Pindell, the editor of the Herald-Transcript of Peoria, Ill., who was recently confirmed for the post of ambassador to Russia from the United States, has declined the big appointment, according to a letter written by him to President Wilson, which was made public today.

Editor Pindell's act comes as a surprising climax to the months of turmoil that resulted from the first announcement of his name for the post and the subsequent letters that are alleged to have been written by him and to him.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2—Editor Pindell in his letter to the president stated that although the senate had investigated accusations in connection with his appointment to the ambassadorship to Russia and had confirmed the nomination unanimously, he felt, nevertheless, that "no controversy of any kind should surround the appointment of any ambassador to a country which cannot be expected to be as familiar with the rear circumstances as they are known at home."

President Wilson, in letter to Mr. Pindell answering his letter of resignation, regrets to accept the declination, and says: "I know your quality so well and was so anxious to see you at St. Petersburg that I feel keen disappointment."

Hint at Chas. Crane.

There is gossip in official circles here that indicate a strong likelihood that Charles R. Crane of Chicago will be named in Pindell's place.

PROWLER CAPTURED BY A YOUNG MAN

FELLOW ALARMED FAMILY OF COMMISSIONER M. J. GANNON.

The family of Commissioner M. J. Gannon was alarmed at about midnight Sunday when a strange man was discovered prowling about the house, and at first it was believed he was attempting to force an entrance into the place. However, later investigation showed that the fellow, whose name was given as Johnson, was intoxicated and probably confused as to his whereabouts.

Mr. Gannon had retired when his daughters heard a noise as of some one rubbing along the side of the house, and after hearing the noise repeated several times a Dixon young man, who was a visitor at the home, saw the fellow prowling near Mr. Gannon's den and gave chase. He caught the fellow and brought him back to the Gannon home where he was questioned by Mr. Gannon, who had been aroused. The man gave his name as Johnson and said he was looking for a fellow named Carlson, who formerly lived in that vicinity. As the fellow was slightly intoxicated and had nothing on his person to indicate that he was a burglar, he was allowed his freedom by the commissioner.

FOURTH DEGREE K. C. HELD GOOD MEETING

COL. MULLIGAN ASSEMBLY HELD A FINE MEETING HERE YESTERDAY.

MANY VISITORS WERE PRESENT

Second Meeting Since Organization Was Established Was Very Successful.

A meeting of the Col. Mulligan General Assembly Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, composed of the Rockford, Freeport, Sterling, Belvidere, Galena, Oregon and Dixon councils, was held in the K. C. hall here Sunday afternoon.

The meeting was the second one held since the Col. Mulligan Assembly was organized at Freeport about three months ago. It was very encouraging to the Fourth Degree members of the Dixon council, to have a large attendance from the other councils of the Assembly. Rochelle members of the Joliet Assembly were also present at the meeting.

During the meeting Worthy Navigator Thos. H. McCann of Rockford appointed a committee to name a place for the next meeting. Rockford was chosen for the meeting place in April, the date to be announced later by the Rockford members. It was also decided that the Fourth Degree will hold regular meetings in the different cities of the Assembly.

After the business meeting all the members were invited to the program, which was opened by the Address of Welcome by John E. Erwin, of the Dixon Council. Father Fegers of Sterling delivered a very interesting address to the good of the order and other subjects. Edward Valle, also of the Dixon council, gave an interesting talk on "Education and Advancement." He was followed by Thos. P. Flynn of Chicago, Master of the Fourth Degree, who spoke on the "Growth of the Fourth Degree in the last Five Years," and also said that the greater number of candidates had made applications at his office this year than last, of which over 400 took the Fourth Degree.

The next speaker was Jerome J. Crowley of Chicago, one of the ablest speakers of the present day, a man whom Dixon council should be proud of having been able to secure for the occasion. Mr. Crowley spoke of the good which the Fourth Degree is endeavoring to do in Chicago and also in other localities. There was also a short talk by Mr. Walsh of Fulton, after which the Fourth Degree members went to the Manhattan cafe, where an oyster supper was served.

CAMP HOPE WILL CEASE THURSDAY

HONOR MEN HAVE COMPLETED GOOD WORK—EXPERIMENT IS A SUCCESS.

In all probability Camp Hope, the first convict labor camp in the history of Illinois, will cease to be on Thursday, for if plans materialize the men who have not been pardoned or paroled will be taken back to the Joliet institution at that time.

In every way the pioneer camp has been a success, demonstrating the wisdom of the humane action by the general assembly, and during the coming summer it is probable that several such camps will be established throughout the state. The men have done very good work on the big hill and as a result Grand Detour township has received a lasting improvement at a very nominal expense.

WORKING WOMEN CALL ON PRESIDENT WILSON

FOUR HUNDRED WOMEN WORKERS LED BY LAUNDRESS AND A WEAVER.

ASK FOR HOUSE COMMITTEE

President is Asked Again Today to Create a House Committee on Women's Suffrage.

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 2—A committee of four hundred women, who are workers in various trades and industries in ten of the eastern states, and who are led by Marguerite Pinchey, a laundress from New York, and Rose Winslow, a weaver from the state of Pennsylvania, was received at the White House today.

The object of the visit of the delegation is to appeal to President Wilson to lend his influence toward the establishment of a house committee on woman suffrage.

Two months ago President Wilson told a committee of suffragists that he might possibly conclude to favor the creation of such a committee to investigate the advisability and possibility of equal franchise. The president told the committee of women at that time, however, that he could not urge the legislation that had not been the subject of "organic party consideration."

The leaders of the suffrage movement in the east believe that they will have gained an important step toward the successful culmination of their fight for nation wide equal suffrage when they are granted their request for a house committee on woman suffrage.

FAIR WEATHER IS SAID TO BE SURE

MR. GROUND HOG FINDS NO SHADOW TO FRIGHTEN HIM BACK IN HIS HOLE TODAY

If the ground hog and his annual attempt to get out of his hole are any criterion of the weather for the ensuing six weeks, the pessimists who have been predicting that the severe weather which has passed the community by during the winter will visit us during the coming month and a half, will have to take to the holes vacated by the aforementioned ground hogs. Today was time-honored Ground Hog day and the "prophet" was able to stick his nose out, and in fact he came clear out into the open without seeing a sign of a shadow to frighten him back into his hole. Therefore mild weather should prevail.

Spoiled The Effect.

Some amateur theatricals for a charity were being organized by the leading inhabitants of a small town who were most liberally supported by the mayor. He bought the dresses and scenery, and won all their hearts by his kindness, and they consequently felt bound to make some return to him, and therefore arranged that he himself should take part in the play. But there was one great drawback. The mayor, though kindness itself, was uneducated, and neglected the poor little letter "h" in the most unwarrantable manner. To obviate this they cast him for the role of a herald. He was to wear a most gorgeous costume, and all he had to do was to come on and shout, in a stentorian voice, "Silence." After some coaching, he got perfect in his part. But when the night came he was attacked with stage fright in all its worst form, and, staggering on to the stage, shouted in a voice of thunder: "Ush!"

Trouble Over Mixed Bathing.

Mixed bathing was a question that caused trouble under the Roman empire. It came in with the collapse of austere republican manners, and the Emperors Hadrian and Marcus Aurelius found it necessary to issue orders against it. Alexander Severus also forbade the opening of "balnea mixta" in Rome. Later on we find great diversity of view in Europe on the matter. In the fifteenth century Bohemian and Spanish travelers were astonished at the goings on at Bruges, Malines and Brussels. The Spaniard observes that "the bathing together of men and women, skin bare, is here reckoned as innocent as is, with us, a visit to church." The public baths at the Swiss Baden, where only a railing separated the sexes, scandalized Poggio Bracciolini.

Blood Transfusion Not New.

Blood transfusion for the purpose of injecting good blood into the veins of the anemic, the diseased or those who have lost it by accident or otherwise, is performed now almost every day in our large hospitals, and it is regarded as a new introduction and a triumph of modern surgery. There is nothing new about it. Blood transfusion was practiced by the Egyptians, the Hebrews and the Syrians in the morning of the world. There is a legend that before Naaman came to Elisha to be healed of his leprosy (II Kings, v., 1-4) his physicians, in their efforts at his cure, took blood from his veins and replaced it with other blood. And baths of blood were prescribed for leprosy 1,800 years ago.

Hard to Please All.

The church authorities of Munich have taken a stand against the picturesque costume of the Bavarian peasants. "Men who wear short trousers which show a part of the bare leg," said the archbishop of Munich, "will not receive the comforts of the church." An American, writing from that city, says: "These people seemed to think more of their native dress than of the comforts. To show this they paraded, accompanied by women in their equally picturesque dress; were reviewed by the prince regent, and 200 couples danced the schuhplattler with a vim which would have been impossible had the men and women worn conventional dress. A schuhplattler with long pants would be as comfortable as a football player on roller skates."

Number of Lives Lost in the Production of Coal Appalling

Cy S. O. Andros, Associate in Mining Engineering, Department of Engineering, University of Illinois.

THE United States produces annually more coal than the combined outputs of Great Britain, France, Belgium and Austria, but in producing this enormous amount of coal it makes a most discreditable record in regard to the average number of men killed per 1,000 employed, as shown below:

United States, 3.74; France, 1.69; Great Britain, 1.36; Belgium, 1.02.

During the calendar year 1912, the United States bureau of mines reports 2,366 deaths in and about coal mines in the United States.

There is a general misconception as to the cause of these numerous accidents. The source of greatest danger to the coal miner is considered by the general public to be explosive gas and coal dust and it is, of course, true that when a gas or coal dust explosion of considerable magnitude occurs in a mine during working hours many men may be imprisoned and perhaps killed and the lives of the rescuers imperiled. The catastrophe is given wide-spread publicity in the press and the world at large becomes familiar with the horrors of mine explosions. There is no lack of opportunity for the public to become familiar with the cause and effect of gas and coal dust explosions because within the history of coal mining in the United States there have been 183 great explosions, causing 5,111 deaths.

While it is, therefore, not at all remarkable that the general public should regard explosive gas and coal dust as the source of greatest danger to the coal miner, as a matter of fact, they may be shown to be comparatively unimportant.

Of the 2,366 deaths occurring in 1912, only 12.8 per cent were caused by explosions of gas and coal dust while 48.8 per cent were caused by falls of roof and coal and 1.53 per cent were caused by pit cars and locomotives used for hauling the cars from the coal face to the shaft bottom.

Very many of the accidents occurring in the coal mines in this country could be prevented by increasing the number of underground bosses,

Training Ideals to Become Habits in Domestic Science

By Helena M. Pincomb, Household Science Department, University of Illinois.

THE domestic science teacher should impress upon her pupils that a large number of acts and processes in connection with the preparation of food and clothing, and the care of the home, should become automatic in order that the mind may be free to attend to that which requires judgment, and that the acts may be performed in the best way, i. e., that the movements may be convenient and economic, and the results attractive, suitable and sanitary.

But the establishment of these habits in school is not sufficient to insure their being carried out as the student performs her tasks under different surroundings and without supervision, unless there has gone with the training in making the fundamental automatic, the formation of ideals of these same methods of work which will guide one in favor of the habit.

These prejudices acquired partly through the formation of the habit, and partly because of discussions regarding the value and importance of the method of procedure followed, lead to the generalization of the habit and its application under any circumstances. This idealizing of the method of work in order that the specific habit may become general makes essential the daily discussion of the importance of and the reasons for giving attention to details of the acts and processes which are to be carried out. The few minutes at the beginning of every sewing and cooking class devoted to such discussion is not wasted, but of inestimable value.

The numerous processes which should become automatic indicate strongly that the teaching of domestic science should not be left to the last years of the high school and to the college, but that the elementary school and the early years of the high school should offer such training.

The numerous processes which should become automatic indicate that high school work should by no means be largely theory work. "Three laboratory and two recitation periods would seem much more suitable than one or two laboratory and three or four recitation periods.

The importance of the habits which may result, but frequently do not result, from the teaching of domestic science in the school, makes imperative the finding and following of a method which will insure their formation. Such method, it is believed, means, first, comparatively small classes—not more than twenty and preferably sixteen; second, daily attention to details which necessitate lessons not overcrowded with subject matter. This would also mean separate recitation periods. Third, stand-

EARNING CAPACITY OF COWS

That there is much wider variation in the earning capacity of individual cows than is generally realized by most farmers is shown by investigations made by the department of Dairy Husbandry at the University of Illinois. The profits based upon actual production of five herds, which were tested for an entire year, were figured out. The conclusions drawn from the investigations were that the returns from cows when expressed in dollars and cents stand out much more vividly than they do when expressed in pounds of milk and butter fat.

Therefore, if every dairyman would keep a yearly record of the amount of milk and butter fat produced by his individual cows, and from this calculate according to Table 1 in circular No. 134 of the Experiment Station of the University of Illinois, the profit or loss on the individuals, he would be astonished at the wide variation in earning capacity of the different cows in his own herd, and the results would be of untold value to him. When the herds themselves are given like consideration, a notable variation in their earning capacity is brought out.

"CASCARETS" ALWAYS STRAIGHTEN YOU UP

WHEN CONSTIPATED, HEADACHY, BILIOUS, STOMACH SOUR, BREATH BAD.

Get a 10-cent box now.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, foul taste and bad breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel worn out.

Are you keeping your bowels clean with Cascarets or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil?

Cascarets work while you sleep; cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular and head clear for months. Don't forget the children. They love Cascarets because they taste good—never gripe or sicken.

Novel From a Film.

There is nothing new in the utilization of novels for the purposes of the cinematograph, but the proposal that novelists are to be commissioned to adapt film plays for the library is a distinct innovation. The adaptation of a play into a novel has, however, often been undertaken in recent years, and several dramatic successes have thus been given a wider audience. One of the first films to be made into a novel is "A Message From Mars," which has the usual distinction of going from the stage to the cinema, and thence to the library, thus reversing the customary process.

MME. MERRI'S ADVICE

SPLENDID IDEA FOR VALUABLE CHARITABLE WORK.

Days-of-the-Week Sale Should Be Made Profitable, and the Social Side Need Not Be Altogether Left Out.

All during the winter there must be money-making schemes to be carried out by guilds, ladies' aids and clubs in order to carry on the great amount of charitable work that must be done. With competent chairmen this days-of-the-week sale ought to bring in a goodly sum. The ideas are merely suggestive and may be enlarged upon and planned to suit the conditions and individual preference of those in charge.

Monday.
Have a booth with everything pertaining to wash day—wash aprons, clothespin aprons, clothespin bags, washtubs, boilers, washboards, clothes lines, clothespins, soaps, washing powder, blueing, clothes baskets, etc.

Tuesday.
Have everything a housewife wants for ironing day—ironing boards, irons, stands, holders, home-made holders, fine starch, bees' wax, ironing board slips, polishing irons, etc.

Wednesday.
Wednesday's booth should have everything for mending day, such as needle books, stocking bags, buttons, button bags, pin cushions, papers of pins, needles, thread, darning needles, darning cotton, darning balls, etc.

Thursday.
Make Thursday the reception day, arranging this booth as a reception hall, with a good, live committee in attendance. Have a book for the guests to register their names and addresses (for future use). Serve refreshments. Introduce strangers and appoint a special committee to look after the backward ones.

Friday.
Let this booth be suggestive of sweeping day. Have plenty of dust caps, dust bags, dusting cloths, brushes, brooms, dust pans, dusters, large colored aprons.

Saturday.
Let this booth be a regular bakery. Have your friends bake various things for you to sell, and have on sale all such articles as will sell readily, such as pies, cakes, cookies, doughnuts, bread, baked beans, candy, salted nuts and popcorn (popped on the spot, if possible).

A band of strolling singers and fortune tellers will help swell the coffers.

Pie Social.
This affair cannot net a very large sum, but it will afford a great deal of fun, and I am sure that the men and boys will appreciate it, because their love of pies is proverbial.

The girls furnish the pies and the men buy them, for only pie and coffee are served for refreshments. Any kind of amusement may precede the eating of the pies. It is just for a novelty and the invitations may be issued on cards shaped like the quarter of a pie. Any man who speaks of the kind of pie "that mother used to make" in comparison to the ones consumed should be subjected to a fine.

ORIENTAL FASHION

This Elaborate Theater Cap of Gold and Pearls is But an Adaptation of the Eastern Turban.

For Storing Stockings.
One woman who lives in a small apartment devised a splendid scheme for storing stockings. She tacked tape around the inside of the bureau drawer at intervals, making each loop large enough to hold a neatly folded pair of stockings, says the Woman's Home Companion. By placing her husband's stockings on the left side and her own on the right, silk stockings at the front and old ones at the back, each pair could easily be selected without disturbing the other contents of the drawer.

Novelty in Combs.

A hinged comb is another odd idea just introduced. The top of most combs so far stands up in a line with the teeth and stands out from the hair. This way the top is hinged, and when the comb is placed in the hair the top bends down flat against the head. It comes in plain amber or fancy rhinestone effect.

ALFRED LEHMAN

Alfred Lehman, a mere youth, confessed in a New York court that he had taken part in 80 bomb explosions in and about New York and had participated in two murders that baffled the police. He was a member of a dynamite gang that has been spreading terror among the Italians of the metropolis for blackmailing purposes.

"GO-TO-CHURCH" WINS

Campaign Increases Chicago Congregations by 500,000.

Other Cities Report Huge Attendance as Result of Movement Aided by the Newspapers.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—Congregations in a majority of the churches were more than doubled as a result of the "Go-to-Church Sunday" movement in Chicago. In many instances the churches were obliged to provide overflow meetings in chapels and basements. It is estimated that 1,000,000 persons attended the services, an increase of 500,000.

The "Go-to-Church" Sunday campaign drew regular churchgoers, occasional churchgoers and non-churchgoers in such numbers that the capacity of every place of worship, of every denomination, was reached at both morning and evening services. It was a triumph of co-operative work on the part of churches, public and newspapers. The usual attendance is about 500,000.

New York, Feb. 2.—It was estimated by Rev. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian church of Brooklyn and chairman of the clerical conference of the New York Federation of Churches, that between 400,000 and 500,000 persons worshiped in Brooklyn churches as a result of the "Go-to-Church" campaign.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 2.—The vigorous advertising campaign in this city for "Go-to-Church" Sunday resulted in a greatly increased attendance at all the principal churches. St. Louis, Feb. 2.—Attendance at the First Christian Sunday school was increased by several hundred by sending out a "calling wagon" for the children. On the sides were large muslin banners bearing the words, "Stop this wagon and take a free ride to the First Christian church Sunday school." The school was crowded after the wagon had made several trips.

Milwaukee, Feb. 2.—"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." That commandment was obeyed by all Milwaukee on "Go-to-Church" Sunday. There were only a few among the city's 400,000 persons who did not attend some service of some denomination.

SHIFTS TO ELIOT'S BELIEF

Doctor Aked, Rockefeller's Pastor, Amazes His Church.

San Francisco, Feb. 2.—Dr. Charles F. Aked, once pastor of the Rockefeller Baptist church in New York, but since then pastor of the First Congregational church in this city, announced to his congregation that he favored the new religion of former President Eliot of Harvard. The auditors were amazed at his declarations.

"It has been said that Jesus Christ was God," said Doctor Aked, "but no New Testament writer has said so. You get that idea from the creeds made by man. Nor is there any reference to the Trinity in the New Testament. Mark, John, Luke and Paul say nothing about Jesus having come into the world in a miraculous way. I prefer to stand with them.

"What do you mean, then, by saying that Jesus was divine? It is a question of quantity and not of quality. There is divinity in us, but so much more in him that I prefer to call him divine.

"Perhaps it would be better to speak of the divineness of man and the divinity of Christ. In what sense is he our saviour? In his reconciliation of man with God. He was a miracle-worker, though I do not profess to believe in all the New Testament miracles."

WILSON TO GIVE VIEW

President to Outline Water Power Plan.

Will Urge Policy of Co-Operation Between Federal and State Governments.

Washington, Feb. 2.—That President Wilson will soon send a message to congress outlining the water power policy of the administration was learned. Democratic leaders who are conversant with the president's views on this subject declare that he will urge a policy of co-operation between federal and state government which will entirely safeguard the interests of the people.

The administration measure regulating future grants of water power rights to private corporations will contain definite stipulations as to rates and practices that will insure fair treatment to the public even in case the states fail to protect properly the interests of the consumers.

The general law will provide conditions under which the power can be developed and dams operated, and a provision will be inserted providing for a revocation of their charters in case of failure to comply with its terms. According to the Democratic leaders, the law will be so framed as to provide redress of grievances by consumers of power in the event that the state laws prove ineffective.

The water power bill will be framed by the house committee, of which Representative Adamson of Georgia is chairman. The committee recently made an inquiry into the operations of the power dam in the Upper Mississippi, between Keokuk, Ia., and Hamilton, Ill.

Complaints have come from points on the Upper Mississippi river that the Keokuk dam was being operated in such a way as to interfere with navigation, and it was also alleged that the company controlling the dam at Keokuk was imposing excessive charges for power.

The publicity given the alleged abuses of the Keokuk company undoubtedly will render difficult the passage of such a law as is proposed by the Democratic leaders in congress.

MINERS ADDRESSED BY KERN

Indiana Lawmaker Says Senators Back Cause.

Indianapolis, Feb. 2.—United States Senator John W. Kern was given an ovation by the convention of United Mine Workers. "I came from Washington," began Senator Kern in his address, "to bring you a message of good will from members of both sides of the United States senate. This is a crucial time for organized labor. Enemies of labor are putting forth greater efforts than ever to influence members of congress and the senate in an attempt to crush trade unionism. It is a time when there should be harmony among yourselves."

"The newspapers had not printed the story of the terrible conditions," said the senator. "I did not know that 'Mother Mary Jones was held a prisoner without the guaranty of her constitutional rights and that she was tried by a drumhead, mock court-martial. Such news was suppressed."

ALLEGED SLAYERS ON TRIAL

Michigan Deputies Face Murder Charges at Houghton.

Houghton, Mich., Feb. 2.—Six deputy sheriffs were placed on trial today in the Houghton county circuit court, charged with murder in the second degree. They are accused of killing Alois Tijan and Steve Putrich, strikers at the Seeberville location, near Painesdale, August 14. Judge Flannigan of Norway, trial judge in the Roosevelt libel case at Marquette last spring, will preside at the trial. The defendants are Thomas Raleigh, James Cooper and Arthur Davis, employees of the Waddell-Mahon corporation; Harry James and Edwin Polkinghorne, employees of Houghton county. It is said that the defense will be self-defense. Frank Novak, a striker, was dangerously wounded in a gun fight with nonunion miners, who were arrested.

NEW PLAN FOR RAIL PROBE

Examiners to Have Charge of Commerce Commission Hearings.

Washington, Feb. 2.—With the arrival here of O. F. Berry of Carthage, Ill., to take up his duties as a senior examiner for the interstate commerce commission, that body will inaugurate a new policy in regard to railroad investigation. Hereafter, instead of commissioners personally taking evidence save in cases of more than ordinary importance, the examiners will have the same relation to the commission as masters in chancery have to the courts. Besides Mr. Berry, the commission has appointed former Judge William Long of Indiana as an assistant. Probably a third man will be named. Mr. Berry will have his headquarters at Chicago.

Delay in New Money Order System.

Washington, Feb. 2.—It will be a month or more after President Wilson signs the bill which has passed congress providing that post office money orders may be paid at any money order office, before it can be put into operation, according to the post office department.

DO WE DESERVE THE LINCOLN HIGHWAY?

Dixon has been singularly fortunate. A few months ago the announcement was made that the great Lincoln highway was definitely routed through this city. All of this great favor came entirely unsolicited, because we happen to be on the logical route. If there was another city that had a chance to get it away from us we'd all be in a great stew working out plans and achieving great deeds, that the highway might come here, but since we are sure that if there is a Lincoln highway we will get it, we drift with the tide.

If every city that is situated on the Lincoln highway did as Dixon is doing, what kind of a Lincoln highway do you think it would be? It would have nothing more than the name.

In other cities where they appreciate the full worth of the giant pathway for transcontinental tourists, things are doing. The citizens are showing that they are grateful for the opportunity and that they want to do their share toward making the highway a success. They are making permanent roads over which the highway is routed, for many miles in both directions from their town. They are raising money, appointing Lincoln Highway committees, naming the streets in the city over which the route goes "The Lincoln Highway," holding meetings and advertising themselves as "On the Lincoln Highway."

If the township commissioners in Lee county, through whose territory the highway goes, were enlightened as to the tremendous value it will be to their separate communities, and if they are shown the responsibility that rests on them by virtue of their office and of the part in the task of building this mammoth national monument to Abraham Lincoln that they are privileged to perform, they could do great work by concentrating a part of their energies on their portion of the Lincoln highway. Dixon township's part ought to be built of concrete to the township line on both sides. It would pay the merchants of Dixon to subscribe a good portion of the cost of this work themselves. By building concrete roads in the country we would not be rushing the march of progress, for it is being done in many places. We have a good opportunity to be right up-to-the-moment, however, and it would be a monument to the enterprise of Dixon if it could be accomplished.

DEMENTTOWN NEEDS BOULEVARD LIGHTS.

Dementtown, the business houses centered on Depot avenue in the part of the city nearest the depot, is a mighty busy and important part of the business life in Dixon, and it is the gateway to the city proper, as everyone who comes in from the outside world must come through there. Depot avenue, at least from the Chicago and Northwestern depot to Sixth street, needs a double row of the boulevard lights similar to those in successful operation in the downtown district. There are several good reasons why the lights should be put in in hustling, enterprising Dementtown, and one very good one is that the impression visitors to Dixon or passengers going through on the trains on the trains would be distinctly improved. First impressions count, they say, and there are many people who think that the business district of Dementtown is the main business section of the city. Those who know the city are aware that under the circumstances that part of town makes a very creditable showing, but (not knocking Dementtown) strangers who see only that street when they expect to find a large, modern business section are apt to climb back on the train.

The Telegraph believes that the business men on Depot avenue, and many of the citizens who are interested in that section, would be glad to raise a fund for a few blocks of a modern style of street lighting. It would certainly be a big boost for that end of town. The people up there do a big enough share of the city's business to merit the expense, and if the men who are most interested in the matter will take it up with their customary zest it will go through. The lights would make a fine combination with the pavement "the Avenue" is going to have.

WHAT THE ASSOCIATED PRESS MEANS.

The Telegraph has been elected a member of the Associated Press, and we just can't help crowing. To be given the only franchise in this territory for telegraphic news service from the Associated Press is some thing that any paper would be proud of. It is a recognition of worth, for us, and for our readers it is a guarantee that they will get all the news of importance that happens anywhere on the face of the globe, and they will get it the day it happens, hot from the wires. It means that when you have finished reading the Telegraph at night you will have read all of the news worth reading, and that no one will have it before you do, and most people not as soon.

With all the talk about a pulmotor, Dixon is still without one of these valuable little machines. If we had one here we could put it to other uses than the saving of drowning persons. It could be tried on the council to see if they could be brought back to life again long enough to install a system of city garbage disposal.

Woodrow Wilson is not living up to the expectations of some, the calamity howlers, and we are glad to see that particular crowd disappointed. The democratic president has his hands full and he is in deep, but he is keeping his head above water in good style.

When presidential primaries in a law this country will come nearer to its title, "The Land of the Free." At this writing it is the land of the free and easy for some, and the "free" and "independent" voter is paying the freight.

Poets

By WALT MASON

I'd rather write one line, be jabbers, to stimulate the man who labors at dreary tasks and hard, than to have my brow with bays encumbered, and hear folks say that I'd be numbered as an immortal bard. I'd rather chirp one little sonnet to cheer the dame with last year's bonnet, the seamstress, in her room, to help the tired and heavy laden, to bring a smile to some sad maiden who bends above her loom, than write an ode on which the scholars would up and bet their bottom dollars that it would never die; than sing a song so great and stirring that it would set the critics purring, and make my rivals cry. The mighty bards! Their stately measure was always writ for folks of leisure who had all kinds of time to read new poems, on divans leaning, and try to figure out the meaning of that dogged rhyme. And so I sit here by the willers and sing the tollers and the tillers, the hewers of the wood; and if I cheer one soul that's saddened, this fat old heart of mine is gladdened, and life seems sweet and good.

WINNINGER SHOWS.

The Dutch Blockhead, probably the most popular of the offerings of the Winner company because of the wide berth it gives that effervescent fountain of fun, Frank Winninger, will be re-played here during the engagement of the Winner varieties of musical comedies beginning tonight at the opera house, to continue for eight nights with usual matinees. But the production is different than ever before. Portions are eliminated and new laughs injected to make it a delightful character play. Without the music The Dutch Blockhead is complete; with it it is a scream. There are no off-color mental or physical ailments this production won't erase.

Count That Failed.

Job Hedges was answering an opponent of scientific management.

"My dear sir," he said, "do you know whom you remind me of? Well, you remind me of the elder Dumas—Dumas pere. Dumas pere wasn't in the habit of counting his money. One day, however, in leaving his money on the mantel, he counted it—nine louis—and went into the bathroom to shave. On his return, a quartet of an hour later, his servant was dusting the furniture, and of the little pile of gold on the mantel only seven louis remained. 'A loss of two louis,' sighed Dumas pere. 'I never counted my money before and I'll never do it again. It doesn't pay.'—New York Press.

Long Official Interpreter.

One of the most interesting officials of the general postoffice in London is the Swiss interpreter, who for 38 years has eased the path of puzzled foreign callers. Thirty-eight years ago the authorities decided to employ the services of an interpreter at the general postoffice, and the appointment was gained for the present holder of the office by the late Lord Borthwick. This interpreter speaks six languages, and formerly acted as interpreter at the International club in Baden-Baden. In that capacity he was in close contact with kings, ambassadors, and the highest placed men of the time, including King Edward.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

(By Russell Byers)

There are always exceptional people and modes—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Monday—Prof. Anderson gave his usual talk.

Tuesday—Music. (Great progress)

Wednesday—Another interesting talk by Dr. Beard of Polo.

Thursday—Remaining articles from last Friday's literary program were given.

Friday—Literary societies met in the afternoon.

Byron Brooks who has been taking a few weeks vacation, has returned to school to resume his work as a student. Everyone was glad to see Byron at school again.

Harry Schuler went to Chicago on Tuesday with his father to visit the auto show. Harry will probably be running automobiles in his sleep when he returns.

Mr. Deming, who is the janitor of the high school is ill with rheumatism and was not at work this week. The boys are all sorry to hear of the ill news of their friend.

The junior class held a class meeting after school to transact some business.

Clark Scholl delightfully entertained the junior class Friday night with a party at his home in the country. They all went in a hay rack.

The Mu. Carroll basketball team defeated Dixon last Friday night in the former's gym by a score of 19 to 15.

The literary societies met in the afternoon and many excellent programs were given. Prof. Anderson's and Homrich's societies had a joint meeting, and a good debate was the feature of the program.

Mark Herbst entertained the senior class at his home in Nachusa Friday night. An enjoyable evening was spent and all departed at a late hour, wishing Mark many thanks for the same.

Dr. Beard of Polo who represents the anti-cigarette league of Chicago, gave a ten-minute talk on the use of tobacco by the high school boys. Every boy listened and seemed interested in his subject. We all hope the boys will refrain from smoking and show that Dr. Beard's speech took effect.

Clifford Seybert was accompanying Anna Aschenbrenner home from school one afternoon, and when they reached Anna's home, Anna's smaller sister yelled out at the top of her voice, "O Mamma! Anna's got a fellow."

Georgia Marshall originated a new song in the Physics room Thursday afternoon. The title of the song is "Charlie on the Old Back Porch." Charles Booher says it a fine song and that he likes it very much.

Edward Devine amused the school Thursday morning with an oration which was not given in Friday's literary program. Mr. Devine is a promising young statesman.

NEW YORK'S CHARITY BALL

New York, Feb. 2.—In the name of charity society will don its prettiest frocks and dance to the merriest tunes next Thursday evening at the Waldorf Astoria. With the assurance that a worthy deed is to be performed in a manner agreeable to the dispenser of charity, the average society person will start for the ball in a heavenly frame of mind, which is a sure guarantee of the pleasant evening which is invariably experienced on these occasions.

For nearly half a century the charity ball has been a leading feature of New York's social season. During this time the proceeds have been devoted to the Nursery and Child's hospital, one of the oldest charitable organizations in the city. The ball this year promises to be as brilliant as any of its predecessors. It is hoped the president's wife and daughters will come on from Washington, and there will be present officers from Governor's Island and the navy yard who will add to the brilliancy of the occasion.

NATION IN TRIBUTE TO SHELBY CULLOM

Bier Surrounded by Most Distinguished Body of Statesmen Since Lincoln Funeral.

INTERMENT AT SPRINGFIELD

Hundreds Fall to Gain Entrance to State House as Services Are in Progress—President Wilson Sends Flowers.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 2.—A simple ceremony with a few words from the officiating clergyman and a short prayer closed the funeral service for Shelby M. Cullom as the body was lowered into a grave within the shadow of the monument which marks the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, in Oak Ridge cemetery. It was the conclusion of an impressive demonstration.

Statesmen from all sections of Illinois and hundreds of persons from Springfield stood about the flower-lined grave shortly before dusk. It was an impressive climax of a simple service at the state capitol.

In the house of representatives, from the same platform where five times Mr. Cullom was presented with a federal senatorial toga, eloquent tributes were paid. To the right hung a large painting of Lincoln, to the left a picture of Douglas. A huge American flag was draped about the speakers' stand. In the center aisle was the casket, covered with flowers. On either side sat members of the Supreme court, state officers, a small remnant of the old-time associates of Lincoln and Cullom.

Governors Deliver Eulogies.

All of the living governors of Illinois were present. Governor Dunne sat on the rostrum with United States Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman. They delivered eulogies of the deceased, as did Rev. Donald C. McLeod, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, who conducted the services. Doctor McLeod was pastor of the Presbyterian church which Senator Cullom attended in Washington.

Among the floral tributes, varied and rich, were pieces from the White House, the United States senate and house and from many citizens in private and public life.

The White House wreath, expressing the sympathy of President Wilson and family, was of violets and myrtle. Robert Lincoln, son of Abraham Lincoln, sent a splendid tribute of violets, palms and magnolia leaves.

Hundreds View Body.

Following a prayer and address by Doctor McLeod, the First Presbyterian church choir sang, "Lead, Kindly Light." Governor Dunne then paid the present administration's tribute to Senator Cullom. The executive was visibly affected and tears stood in his eyes as he briefly pictured the struggles of the last half century.

After another hymn by the choir and a fervent prayer by Doctor McLeod, concluding with the benediction, the body was escorted to Oak Ridge by a party in carriages. There was no military display. At the grave the service was very brief.

Buried Between Graves of Wives.

Senator Cullom was buried between the graves of his two wives, who preceded him many years.

The pallbearers were: Senator Logan Hay, George B. Stadden, Harry A. Converse, Jacob Bunn, Henry Merriam, Shelby Dorwin, Frank Fisher, L. E. Wheeler and Edward S. Robinson of this city and Garfield Charles, Chicago, who for many years was private secretary to former Senator Cullom.

QUARREL OVER CATS; SUICIDE

Artist Kills Himself When Wife insists Pets Be Killed.

Ossining, N. Y., Feb. 2.—Because his wife had arranged for the chloroforming of his three cats on the eve of the family's return to New York, Henry Richard Boehm, an artist, formerly of Chicago, shot and killed himself at his country home in Briarcliffe Manor. Mr. Boehm's fondness for his cats was due in part to the fact that they had been models for his magazine illustrations. He could not care for them as he wished in New York and he disliked the idea of giving them away lest they be ill-treated. The decedent was forty-four years old.

FRANK WINNINGER MUSICAL COMEDY AT THE OPERA HOUSE ALL NEXT WEEK.

THE NE'ER-DO-WELL

A Romance of the Panama Canal
BY REX BEACH

COPYRIGHT, 1910, 1911, BY HARPER & BROTHERS

SYNOPSIS.

Kirk Anthony, son of a rich man, with college friends, sets out on a frigate in a New York resort. A detective is hurt. Jefferson Locke insinuates himself into the college men's party.

Locke, aided by Kirk's friend Higgins, who thinks it a joke, drugs Kirk and puts him aboard a ship bound for Colon. Kirk is on the passenger list as Locke.

"Broke" and without baggage, aboard the ship Kirk makes the acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cortlandt.

Kirk's father repudiates him, and Weeks casts him out as an impostor. Kirk meets Allan, a Jamaican negro canal worker out of a job. The two are arrested by Colon police for helping to put out a fire.

Kirk and Allan are treated brutally in a Colon jail by young Alfarez, commandant of police. Allan's release is obtained by the British consul, but Weeks refuses to aid Kirk. Mrs. Cortlandt gets a phone call.

Mrs. Cortlandt obtains Kirk's release by using influence with Colonel Jolson, head of the canal. The Cortlandts are intriguing to make Alfarez's father president of Panama.

Kirk's father casts him off finally, and Mrs. Cortlandt obtains for him a position on the Panama railroad under Runnels, master of transportation.

The Cortlandts and Kirk plan a picnic on the island of Taboga, near Panama. Cortlandt is detained and his wife and Kirk are marooned on the island.

CHAPTER X.

A Night at Taboga.

DESPITE his great contentment in Mrs. Cortlandt's society, Kirk found himself waiting with growing impatience for his active duties to begin. Curiously enough, this feeling was somehow connected with the thought of Edith herself. Why this should be so he did not trouble to inquire. They had become the best of good friends, he told himself, a consummation for which he had devoutly wished, yet for some indefinable reason he was dissatisfied.

He decided that he needed exercise and determined to take a tramp through the country, but on the evening before the day he had set for his excursion his plans were upset by a note from Mrs. Cortlandt, which the clerk handed him. It ran:

Dear Kirk—Stephen has arranged an outing for all three of us, and we are counting on you for tomorrow. It will be a really truly picnic, with all the delightful discomforts of such affairs. You are not to know where we are going until we call for you at 8. Faithfully and mysteriously yours, EDITH CORTLANDT.

The recipient of this kind invitation tossed it aside, with a gesture of impatience. For the moment he experienced a kind of boyish resentment at having his intentions thwarted that seemed out of proportion to the cause. But the emotion soon passed.

The next morning Edith appeared upon the hotel porch. She was alone.

"Where's Mr. Cortlandt?" he inquired.

"Oh, some men arrived last night from Bocas del Toro and telephoned that they must see him today on a matter of importance. I shall have to make up to you for his absence if I am able."

"Where is to be the scene of our revel?"

"Taboga," she said, with eyes sparkling. "You've never been there, but it's perfectly gorgeous. Please call a coach, our boat is waiting, and don't sit on the porch."

Kirk obeyed, and they went clattering down the deserted brick street. Edith leaned back, with a sigh.

"I'm so glad to get away from that hotel for a day. If you only knew it, Kirk, you've capsize the political calculations of the Panama Conservative party."

"I didn't know I had ever even rocked the boat."

"It runs back to your affair with Ramon."

"Really, did that effect it?"

"Rather. At any rate it gave an excuse for setting things in motion. There had been some doubt about the matter for a long time, and I was only too glad to exert my influence in the right direction, but this is a picnic to an enchanted island, and here we are talking politics. We mustn't be so serious. School is out, and it's vacation. I want to romp and play and get my face dirty."

The landing was thronged, and at sight of the newcomers loiterers gathered from all sides—a pirate throng, shouting a dozen dialects and forcing Kirk to battle lustily for his luggage. Stepping into a skiff, they were rowed to a launch, and a few moments later were gliding swiftly around the long rock rib that guards the harbor, a copper lined bandit at the wheel, a Nubian giant at the engine and an evil yellow faced desperado sprawling upon the forward deck.

Even before they had come to anchor at Taboga Island a dozen boatmen were racing for them and crying for their patronage. At the water's edge they saw a tiny village nestled close against the mountains, its tiled roofs, rust red and grown to moss, its walls faded by wind and weather to delicate mauves and dove colors and greens impossible to describe.

The launch, when it came to rest, seemed suspended in air, and beneath it lay an entrancing sea garden. Once the engine had stopped its clatter a sleepy, peaceful silence settled over the harbor, unbroken by wheel or whistle, for in Taboga no one works and there are no vehicles.

"What a wonderful place!" exclaimed the young man fervently. "Why, it's like a dream—it can't be real!" Then, as the boatmen renewed their begging, "I wonder which barge gentleman I'd better hire."

"Take the little boy, please," Edith called to an urchin who was manfully struggling with a pair of oars twice his own length, whereupon the older boatmen began to shove off with many scowls.

"Our choice has offended these genial bandits," Kirk observed as he helped her to a seat. "When shall we tell the lad to bring us off?"

"Four o'clock," answered Mrs. Cortlandt. "I arranged with the captain to be ready at that hour, so, you see, we have the whole day ahead of us."

Across the limpid shallows they glided, bravely propelled by their nine-year-old oarsman, but when the bow of their skiff grated upon the bottom they were still some yards from the shore.

"Looks as if we'd have to wade," said Kirk, then called to one of the nearby boatmen to lend the child a hand. But the fellow replied gruffly in some unintelligible jargon.

"He says he carries his passengers ashore in his arms," Edith translated. "Really? Competition is spirited even on this heavenly isle. Well, that's easy!" Anthony untied his low shoes, kicked them off and rolled up his trousers.

"Permit me to help you," he said, "without embarrassing you, please."

She stood up and allowed him to gather her in his arms. Then for the first time she felt his strength as her body leaned to his. Slowly he picked his way ashore while she reclined in his embrace, her arms about his neck, her smooth cheek brushing his. When he deposited her gently upon her feet he saw her face had gone white and that she was trembling.

His own face was glowing as he waded back to fetch the lunch basket and his footgear. Under the circumstances he had done the only natural, the only possible thing, yet it had queerly perturbed both.

The two visitors explored the village, even to the quaint, tawdry chapel, with its impossible blues and rusted gilt, and noon found them eager to investigate the contents of their lunch basket. Taking a random path up the hill, they came at last to a spring of cool water, and here they spread their meal under a mango tree beneath tons of fruit.

The afternoon sped quickly. If at times Kirk found his companion regarding him with a strangely timid, half defiant look, he refused to connect it with the episode of his landing.

Promptly at 4 they came down the drunken little main street and out upon the beach. But no launch was in sight.

"Hello! Where's our boat?" exclaimed Kirk.

"The captain told me he'd be ready at 4. Perhaps he has run over to Taboguilla or"—She hesitated with a troubled frown.

"You told him to wait?"

"Distinctly." Seeing an idler in the square above, she questioned him in Spanish. "This man says the launch left for Panama two hours ago. They went on a Sunday spree. He says they came ashore and bought a lot of liquor, and he heard them quarreling later."

"That means we'll have to get another boat."

"I don't know where we shall find one."

"Neither do I, but there must be some sort of craft that plies back and forth regularly."

"Only once or twice a week, I believe, and it belongs to the sanitarium. Perhaps we'd better wait awhile; our men may come back."

At last, as the sun was dipping into a bed of gold, Kirk broke out:

"Gee whiz! We've got to do something. Mr. Cortlandt will be getting worried."

"In all probability he won't know anything about it until too late to come for us. He is dining with those people from Bocas, and may not get back to the Tivoli before midnight."

"Nice fix we're in!" remarked Anthony. "I'd like to lay hands on that captain."

"We may have to stay here all night."

"Well, at least we have a haven of refuge. They'll take us in at the hospital."

"I don't care to ask them. There's some one up there I don't wish to see. That's why I didn't go near the place today."

He laughed to hide his embarrassment. "I'm wondering—what people will say."

"Oh, you mustn't be troubled about that. It isn't your fault, you know, anyhow. Besides, people won't say anything because they won't know anything about it—if we stay away from that sanitarium."

"It's getting along toward dinner time," he said, "so let's see what we can find in the way of food."

They stumbled out into the unlighted street and began their search, but, seen close at hand, the cooking arrangements of Taboga proved most unattractive. But eventually they found a decent looking place, where they were taken in, and, after an interminable wait, food was set before them—chicken, boiled with rice and coconut, black beans and coconut, fresh, warm milk and a wondrous assortment of hot-house fruits.

In spite of their equivocal situation, Edith seemed fully to have regained her spirits. Even the prospect of spending the night in this place apparently did not dismay her. They descended to the square again, stared at all the way through open doors and followed by a subdued murmur of comment. Then they sat for a long time watching the stars.

As if in despair over their impossible predicament, Edith gave way to a spirit of reckless vivacity, and Kirk, with a man's somewhat exaggerated sympathy for a woman's sensitive feelings, loyally strove to help her make the best of things in her own way. There was no real concession of her reserve—no sacrifice of the feminine privilege of prompt and complete withdrawal. If he had struck a false note he knew that she would have turned frigid in an instant.

It was on their return to the house that the climax came, leaving him strangely shaken. Their course took them past a tiny cantina. Frightened by a drunken brawl within, she picked up her skirts and fled into the darkness, Kirk stumbling along behind her.

At last she stopped out of breath, and he overtook her.

"You mustn't run through these dark alleys," he cried sharply. "You'll break your neck." Half impatient at this hysterical behavior, he seized her by the arm.

"Oh, I'm so frightened!" she breathed, and he felt her tremble. She lifted her white face, and her eyes were luminous in the gloom.

Before he realized what he was doing his arms had closed around her and his lips had met hers. It may have been the romance of the night, the solitude, the intoxicating warmth of her breath. At any rate, he lost his head and knew nothing save that she was a woman and he a man. As for her, she offered no resistance, made no sign beyond a startled sigh as their lips came together.

But, impulsive as his action had been, it was no more sudden than his recoil. He released her and stepped back, crying:

"Oh, my God! I—I didn't mean that. Forgive me. Please." She said nothing, and he stammered desperately again: "You'll hate me now, of course, but I don't know what ails me. I forgot myself—you—everything. It was unparadise, and I ought to be shot."

He started off down the blind street, his whole body cold with apprehension and self disgust.

"Do you intend to leave me here in the middle of this?"

"No, no! Of course not. I'm rattled, that's all. I've just got a cowardly desire to flee and butt my head against the nearest wall. That's what I ought to do. I don't know what you'll think of me."

"We won't speak of it now. Try to compose yourself and find our lodging place."

"Why, yes, of course. I'll see that you're fixed up comfortably, and then I'll get out."

"Oh, you mustn't leave me!" she cried in a panic. "I couldn't stay in that awful place alone." She drew a little nearer to him, as if demanding his protection. A wave of tenderness swept over him. She was just a girl, after all, he reflected.

"I—I won't leave you. I'll stay near you," he stammered.

"I won't believe that you could have taken me for the kind of woman who—"

"No, no!" he cried in an anguish of self reproach. "I was a fool!"

"No," she said, "I don't—I couldn't bear to think that. Perhaps I was partly to blame. But I didn't think. I ought to have known that no man can really be trusted. But I thought our friendship was so beautiful, and now you've spoiled it."

"Don't say that!" exclaimed Kirk. "Say you'll forgive me some time."

But instead of answering him directly she proceeded in the same strain, probing his wounded self respect to the quick, making his offense seem blacker every moment.

Although he assured her over and over that he had simply followed the irresponsible, unaccountable impulse of a moment—that he had regarded her only as the best of friends and respected her more than he could say—she showed him no mercy. The melancholy, regretful tone she adopted was ten times worse than anger, and by the time they reached the inn where they had dined he was sunk in the depths of self abasement.

In reply to his knock an old woman came to the door and silently admitted them. Edith said good night and, quietly entering, closed the door behind her.

Kirk experienced a sudden desire to escape. To remain where he was simply prolonged his humiliation. But evidently he could not desert Edith. He sat down upon the doorstep and gave himself up to bitter thoughts.

She was such a wonderful woman, he told himself; she had been such a true friend to him that he had been worse than criminal to lose her respect. And Cortlandt had been so decent to him! It was significant that this gave him the most discomfort of all. He had betrayed a man's friendship, and the thought was unbearable. No punishment could be too severe for that!

When the first faint flush of dawn stole over the hill crest behind him he rose to wander toward the water front. As the harbor assumed definite form he beheld a launch stealing toward the village and ten minutes later greeted Stephen Cortlandt as that gentleman stepped out of the tender.

"Where's Edith?" eagerly demanded her husband.

"She's asleep. I found a place for her."

"Not at the sanitarium?"

"No, no. One of these houses, Lord, I'm glad to see you! We'd begun to feel like real castaways. I've been up all night."

"What happened?" It was plain that Mr. Cortlandt was deeply agitated.

"Our boatmen evidently got drunk and pulled out. I tried to get a sailboat, but there weren't any, and it was too rough to try crossing with a skiff."

It took them "at a moment to reach the house, and you the three were back at the water front."

"What a miserable night!" Mrs. Cortlandt complained, stifling a yawn. "I thought you'd never come, Stephen."

"I didn't get back to the Tivoli until midnight, and then I had trouble in finding a boat to bring me over."

"I suppose they were alarmed at the hotel?"

"I said nothing about it," he returned, quietly, at which his wife's face flushed. Seizing the first occasion, he exclaimed, in a low voice: "God! How unfortunate—at this time. Were you mad?"

She looked at him and her eyes burned, but she said nothing.

HEAD STUFFED? GOT A COLD? TRY PAPE'S

"Pape's Cold Compound" ends colds and gripe in a few hours.

Take "Pape's Cold Compound" every two hours until you have taken three doses, then all gripe misery goes and your cold will be broken. It promptly opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages of the head; stops nasty discharges or nose running; relieves headache, dullness, feverishness, sore throat sneezing, soreness and stiffness.

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling. Ease your throbbing head—nothing else in the world gives such prompt relief as "Pape's Cold Compound," which costs only 25 cents at any drug store. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, and causes no inconvenience. Accept no substitute.

"You haven't heard anything until you have heard both sides," a writer remarks. That may be very pretty logic, but the drum Willie got for Christmas refutes it. And so

CHARGE BY LANE STIRS UP SENATE

Oregon Lawmaker Attacks Commerce Committee; Silenced by Vice-President.

STEEL REBATES THEME

Withdraws Charge of "Doctored" Report—Bristow, Root and Stone Bicker—Lamar Defended and Late Morgan Assailed.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Vice-President Marshall removed Senator Lane of Oregon from the floor of the senate, in a parliamentary sense. The senator was speaking on the interstate commerce committee's action on his resolution to investigate whether the United States Steel corporation had received illegal rebates from railroads. The vice-president ruled Mr. Lane's remarks were a reflection on the committee.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the committee, and Senators Hoke Smith and Lodge were on their feet at once demanding apologies.

Upon motion of Senator James the Oregon senator was allowed to proceed, and he withdrew his charges that the report had been "doctored" upon demand by Senator Newlands.

Lane Stirs Up Trouble. Just before his attack upon the committee Senator Lane had defended Davis Lamar as a person whose "wolfing" was not to be compared with J. P. Morgan & Co.'s manipulation of New Haven affairs.

"Yet Mr. Morgan," continued Senator Lane, "said his dearest hope was for the son to go on preaching the washing away of sin by the blood of the Redeemer. Then he pulled out of his hip pocket a red bandanna and skipped out for glory."

"I don't like to have the senate dragged around as the tool of a blackmailer," said Senator Root, without rising or addressing the chair, but speaking to Senator Cummins.

Senator Bristow sprang to his feet. "The senator from New York said something," said he. "I don't know whether he meant it to go into the Record."

Senator Bristow then repeated Senator Root's words.

Bristow Remarks Cause Bickering. "Some persons seem mighty tender when it comes to discussing the steel trust," added Senator Bristow, "a trust whose stock has gone up ten per cent, and has $500,000,000 of water."

Senator Root, rising to a question of personal privilege, expressed his regret that the senator from Kansas had seen fit to have made a matter of public record remarks he had casually made to Senator Cummins.

Senator Stone, interrupting at that point, declared: "The senator from Kansas is in the habit of doing those things. Personally I am tired of it."

At this juncture Senator Williams, declaring that the senators appeared to be in "bad humor," demanded the regular order.

Senator Newlands said if Mr. Lane's charge had not been withdrawn he would propose a committee investigation.

"O, I've withdrawn it," said Senator Lane, and consideration of the whole subject went over.

GEN. JAMES G. WILSON DIES

Veteran of Civil War and Known by His Literary Works.

New York, Feb. 2.—Gen. James Grant Wilson, soldier, editor and author, who has been ill in St. Luke's hospital here for several weeks, died. From the first little hope was held out for his recovery, because of his advanced age—he was eighty-one years old—but his great vitality kept him alive for weeks after the inevitable end was apparent. General Wilson, a Scotch poet, was a veteran of the Civil war. Brevetted at its close a brigadier general of volunteers, he laid down the sword and took up the pen. His literary labors produced more than a score of volumes. His most important editorial work was on "Appleton's Cyclopaedia of American Biography."

General Wilson's first wife died in 1904, and in 1907 he married the widow of Admiral J. A. Nicholson.

CARDINAL GENNARI SUCCEUMS

Prefect is Third to Die Within Two Months.

Rome, Feb. 2.—Cardinal Casimir Gennari, prefect of the congregation of the council, died. His death was due to heart disease. He is the third cardinal to die in the last two months, the others being Cardinal Oreglia and Cardinal Rampolla.

Cardinal Gennari was born at Maratea, December 27, 1839. He was created and proclaimed April 15, 1901. There are now 16 vacancies in the sacred college and the holding of a consistory at an early date is thought to be necessary.

Call Off Feast to Pindell.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 2.—The banquet planned by the association of commerce, Knights of Columbus, Peoria board of trade and Creve Coeur club next Friday evening for Ambassador Henry M. Pindell has been called off because Mr. Pindell was called out of the city unexpectedly.

POCKET TO HOLD SLIPPERS

Decorative Design Could Be Carried Out in Any Colors That Appeal to Fancy of Maker.

A decorative and dainty slipper pocket is shown in the accompanying sketch. It is made in pale pink art linen and may be cut out in two pieces, one piece forming the back, and the other the pockets; the latter piece of material is seamed down the center so that it forms two separate divisions into which the slippers may be placed. The material is turned over at the top and hemmed down and either a thin piece of wood or a piece of cane run through. This is done in order that the pocket will retain its shape when hanging upon the wall.

It is edged throughout with a pink and white cord carried into loops on either side, and again at the base, where the ends of the cords hang downwards and are knotted together and frayed out into tassels.

The openings of the pockets are also edged with some of the same pink and white cord which is arranged in three little loops in the center. On the front of each of these pockets a simple floral design is embroidered consisting of a white daisy with a yellow center and leaves in various shades of green. At the top a loop of cord is provided for suspending the pocket from a nail in the wall.

Other colors in which this useful article might be carried out are pale blue linen with white cord and flowers worked in white thread, or pale green linen with pink cord and pink daisies.

As the Pocket Appears.

DESIGNS FOR SACHET CAPS

Selection of Material an Important Thing for This Latest Very Popular Fancy.

Should be of handkerchief linen or nainsook, the heavier the better, for the odor of the sachet must be safely confined within the cap's dainty limits; it would escape through a thin material. Cut from the goods a round piece about 16 inches across and mark out the edges with a thimble and pencil for scallops. Buttonhole the scallops and edge with a narrow valencienne lace to relieve the somewhat heavy appearance of the cap. Run a narrow casing about an inch and a quarter above the scallops for the elastic. In the center work a solid design in white punch work, for eyelets would permit the odor of the sachet to escape. Make a flat, three-inch square sachet bag of the material used in the cap (nainsook or handkerchief linen will be heavy enough), a thin layer of cotton and plenty of sachet, and baste it to the inside of the cap right under the center design. Use a basting stitch, with very tiny stitches on the outside and large ones inside, so that the bastings will not be conspicuously prominent on the outside. Place a twisted ribbon about the capover the elastic casing and a small ribbon bow in the exact center to the scalloped edge. The sachet cap is then ready for "business."

Worn for an hour or so the cap will impart a delightful, if somewhat fleeting, fragrance to the tresses, but worn overnight the perfume will sometimes cling to the hair for several days.

SCARF WRAP HAS COME BACK

Elaborate and as Highly Colored as Wearer Wishes—They Have Been Given Warm Welcome.

Between the mantle and no wrap at all there is often an uncomfortable gap that the light transparent scarf does not fill. This has brought back the pretty fashion of the scarf wrap, or, to be more correct, it should be called a scarf shawl, it is so wide. Wrapped about the figure it often looks like a mantle. These scarfs are generally two and a half yards long and a yard or more wide. Sometimes they are the width of the material used, which may be even as much as 52 inches.

Some of the elaborate ones for evening are made of crepe de chine that has a printed border on both sides. These are outlined about the edge with an ostrich feather band. Others are of charmeuse, lined with a contrasting color of charmeuse or chiffon, plain or flowered. Such scarfs are often striped with marabou and fur, a finishing band of it across the shorter edges.

Jewels Mounted on Onyx.

Onyx is becoming a favorite for the mounting of jewels. It is seen as a setting for dinner rings which are new in style, being set with a round stone. It is also shown in necklaces and other jewelry.

P. O. Department Committee Cites Ultimate Necessity of Federal Control

WOULD ACT IMMEDIATELY

Report Points Out That Government Monopoly Is Only Solution Beneficial to People—Would Cost Nation $225,000,000.

Washington, Feb. 2.—[Master General Burleson submitted the senate the recommendations the departmental committee appointed by him to investigate the practicability of government monopoly of telephone and telegraph lines, wires, communication and whatever stem of transmitting messages may later be devised by congress.

The report declares that the only way to afford to the people complete and modern postal facilities that the Constitution makes it duty of the government to provide by carrying out these suggestions:

1. That congress declare government monopoly over all teleph, telephone and radio communication and such other means for the transmission of intelligence as may hereafter develop.

2. That congress acquire purchase at appraised value commercial telephone network, except the farmer lines.

3. That congress authorize postmaster general to issue, in his discretion and under such regulations as he may prescribe, revocable licenses for the operation, by private individuals, associations, companies and corporations of the telegraph service and such parts of the telephone service as may not be acquired by the government.

Opposes Telegraph Ownership.

Must Find Unknown Isles.

Search for treasure in southern waters will shortly be undertaken by Roland P. Kelley, a Harvard junior, in compliance with the terms of the will of his grandfather, T. L. Kelley. The will provides that young Kelley should have the savings of his grandfather's fifty years of trading as a ship master in the far east on condition that before his twenty-first birthday he should attempt to locate pearl fisheries in an estuary of the Amazon river and two uncharted islands in the Pacific. These islands, according to the will, were found by the old mariner to contain a large amount of gold and were discovered when he was in search of fresh water on one of his voyages. The pearls were seen on another voyage.

Twins Cause Confusion.

The Woodend Infant school at Shipley, in Yorkshire, England, contains six couples of small twins. A good deal of confusion results from the dual likenesses, and the more so because the mothers of the twins delight in dressing them alike. "It is often impossible for us to tell who's who," the headmistress says. "One pair of twins—Elizabeth and Sarah—were among the performers at a school concert, and each was to sing a little song. But somehow their places were mixed up, and when we pointed to Elizabeth to stand and sing, her sister rose and said she was the real Elizabeth, while the wrong Elizabeth burst into tears, because she could not sing Elizabeth's song."

Children and Their Pets.

As a rule—at any rate, with very tiny children—do not let boys and girls punish their pets. When it is necessary to punish a bird or animal in their presence explain very plainly why the punishment is given. Further, guard against telling wonderful anecdotes of animals before the children. It is often thoughtlessly done, and has frequently pitiful results. Children have perverted senses of proportion, and in utter good faith try to make their rabbit do the trick they heard described as done by some performing bear; they do not guess at the misery they cause their pet.—Exchange.

RACE AROUND WORLD

Prizes Totalling $300,000 to Be Offered for Air Voyage.

Flight Over Atlantic Hardest Part of Contest, But Experts Hold It Is Possible.

San Francisco, Feb. 2.—Three hundred thousand dollars, and perhaps more, will be offered in prizes to aeronauts for a race around the world in any type of motor-driven air craft under the auspices of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition company. Of this sum $150,000 will be given directly by the exposition company. The race is to start early in May, 1915. Contestants will be allowed 90 days in which to make the flight of approximately 22,000 miles around the globe.

The sanction was given upon the receipt of telegrams stating that the Panama-Pacific exposition and the Pacific Aero club of San Francisco were organizing such a race and that application for sanction had been mailed.

The race starts and finishes on the grounds of the Panama-Pacific exposition, and the course lies east from San Francisco.

The route as now outlined crosses the Atlantic ocean, England, France, Germany, Russia, Japan and the Pacific ocean, touching the world's brilliant capitals, the arctic, the sub-tropics of the orient and the Siberian wastes. Specifically the lines in America run from San Francisco, through Reno, Nev.; Cheyenne, Wyo.; from there either to Kansas City, St. Louis or Chicago and on to New York.

The Atlantic ocean is conceded to be the most formidable stretch in the race. It will be essayed from Belle Isle, a small point between New Foundland and Labrador. Cape Farewell, Greenland, the next stop, barring a drop into the water, is 610 miles away, and from Cape Farewell to Deyjavik, Iceland, is 670 miles farther. One more jump to Stornaway, in the Hebrides, is 570 miles—and the Atlantic has been crossed.

19 ARE LOST WITH SHIP

First Officer's Heroism Saves Lives of Five.

Falmouth, England, Feb. 2.—Captain Lorenz, the first officer and 17 of the crew of the German bark Hera, from Pisagua, Chile, lost their lives through the vessel striking a rock while nearing Falmouth, the end of the voyage.

After the vessel struck the rock the first officer, who was lashed to the rigging, blew his whistle for help until the rising tide almost engulfed him. Then he passed the whistle over with the remark:

"Here, chum, you can do better with that than I can."

At the same instant the first officer fell back dead. Through this action, however, five of the crew were saved. The sound of the whistle attracted the crew of a lifeboat, who rescued the men in the rigging.

The appraisal has been filed by the executors with the transfer tax appraiser.
